FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Steven Korzeniewski Selected as New Director of Statistical Analysis Resource Group (SARG) at MPRO

(Farmington Hills, MI, September 16, 2009) – Steven Korzeniewski of Royal Oak, Michigan, has joined MPRO, Michigan’s Health Care Quality Improvement Organization, to serve as Director of the Statistical Analysis Resource Group (SARG). In this role, Mr. Korzeniewski will provide statistical and data analytic oversight to meet and exceed contractual performance and ensure that high analytic standards are met. He will further serve as MPRO’s Scientific Officer and oversee the design and implementation of research studies.

“We are excited to welcome Steven to the MPRO team. He brings a wealth of knowledge and experience in epidemiological research and analytics. His expertise nicely supports our quality improvement and patient safety projects as we work to demonstrate better health outcomes,” said Robert Yellan, president and chief executive officer, MPRO.

A Ph.D. candidate in Epidemiology at Michigan State University, Mr. Korzeniewski most recently worked at the Michigan Department of Community Health in the area of maternal and child health epidemiology. While there, he spent time as a Maternal and Child Health Epidemiology Section Leader, as well as a Newborn Screening Epidemiologist.

Mr. Korzeniewski earned a bachelor’s degree in Psychology from Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan, as well as two master’s degrees from Michigan State – one in Health Communication and one in Epidemiology.
